Week from today is Christmas.

Do you know what ward you live in?

Get your good resolutions together. The new year will begin in two weeks.

Parents should be careful that the children do not hang up the stocking Christmas eve that is being used as the family bank.

Fortunately we will hear nothing more from the greatest fleet in the world until it arrives at Trinidad in about a week and after that only at fortnightly or greater intervals.

The women of Goldfield told General Funston that they were just frightened more to death until he came there. Swimming rivers in the Philippines isn't in it with putting down "anarchy and revolt" in Nevada.

Globe people who want Christmas trees can get all they want on the Pinal mountains, but they must be obtained through forest reserve regulations and by applying to the forest guard who is in charge. Hundreds of people secured Christmas trees last year through the same channels.

CONGRESS AND THE CURRENCY.

It is now certain that congress will make no attempt at "rushing" currency legislation. The respective committees of the two houses will take time to consider the various pending proposals and evolve a measure that, it is to be hoped, will merit general approval. The correspondents have sufficiently sound congressional sentiment to feel safe in predicting that nothing "radical" will be done. What is important, however, is that the thing that is finally done shall embody the lessons of the recent crisis and be sufficient to prevent similar disastrous experiences in the future.

Neither the president nor Secretary Cortelyou has submitted a specific scheme to congress. Both deemed it more important to state the problem correctly, to emphasize the defect in our currency system that can no longer be tolerated or ignored, than to advocate a concrete remedy.

The president recommended provision for an "emergency currency" based on adequate securities and subject to a tax heavy enough to insure its retirement upon the return of fairly normal business and financial conditions. What the tax should be to prevent inflation, and what classes of securities other than government bonds would be safe and proper as a basis for the emergency issues, the president leaves to congress to determine.

Secretary Cortelyou, deeming it probable that congress will not at once overhaul and modernize the entire currency system in accordance with the advocates of either the regular asset currency plan or the central bank scheme, suggests, as an alternative, some measure that would impart "a greater elasticity to the currency" under government guaranty—"something which should be automatic in its operation."

Mr. Cortelyou intimates, however, that the desire to avoid radicalism and complexity will not excuse needless delay. Promptness of action, he well says, is as desirable as simplicity of plan. The people expect immediate and earnest consideration of the currency problem and some provision for certain, definite relief under safeguards of law.

Forty-five Years on One Job.
Robert G. Lucas, seventy-one years old, resigned his place in the office of the American Express company here last night, ending a forty-five years' term of service for the company, in which time he never has missed a day's pay.

For seventy years Mr. Lucas had no need of the attention of a physician. Less than a year ago he felt a decline in health and began treatment. His throat has become affected by smoking. He gives the following advice to those who would emulate his example:

"Good health is as great a requisite of a good worker as good brains. Young man, don't smoke to excess. If I had dropped smoking when I could my bank account would be $5,000 larger today. "Pass up the drinks. A man should have eight hours' sleep out of every twenty-four. That doesn't mean four one night and twelve the next.

"Consult your wife and follow her advice. If she tells you to wrap up your throat in a red flannel rag soaked in kerosene, do it."—Chicago Dispatch to the New York Herald.

Pointed Paragraphs.
Most of the splinters in the banister of life are unnoticed until we begin to slide down.

A successful man is one who makes his mistakes when they don't count against him.

FORMER GLOBE GIRL WEDS

Miss Alice Sieboth Becomes Bride of R. P. Sharpe at Florence Last Week

The Florence Blade gives the following account of the marriage of a former resident of Globe, a young lady, who has a host of friends here:

At high noon on Tuesday last, at the home of the bride's parents, a quiet wedding ceremony was performed, by which Miss Alice Sieboth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Sieboth, became the wife of R. Percy Sharpe, son of Mayor John W. Sharpe of this city. The Episcopal marriage service was used, Rev. J. Fricelli officiating.

Mrs. Gertrude Pendleton acted as bridesmaid and Sidney A. Bartleson as best man. The bride wore a becoming empire gown of white albatross. The house was beautifully decorated with great clusters of American beauty and bride roses, white chrysanthemums and cyclamens.

After the wedding ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served the bride and groom, and at two o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe departed for a brief tour of some of the cities of the southwest. Upon their return they will make their home at the old Pinto place, which the groom has fitted up for a home.

The bride is a refined and cultured young lady of high attainments and has been a leading light in the most exclusive social circles of Florence for the past two years. The groom is a very model and industrious young man of considerable business ability. The young couple have numerous friends here who join the Blade in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous married life.

SWEARING MADE EASY.

When a cayuse gets to bucking, Where the rocks are thick and hard, It makes a cowboy sigh again To be in mother's yard; To be again a little boy Way back upon the farm, Reading wild west stories And safe at home from harm.

When a cayuse gets to bucking, Out on a western range, Ther'll be a cowboy wishing That he had his daddie's change, That he might seek a railway To strike out all alone And seek again the comforts He used to have at home.

When a cayuse gets to bucking, As those nancy critters can, It will make a cowboy whisper That awful swear word, "Damn." It will make him hunt for liquor And forget his Sunday school, Where the meel, the wise and lowly Taught each the golden rule.

When a cayuse gets to bucking, But why prolong the pain— He jumps you up, and jumps you down, And bumps you hard again, Till your light and liver tangle With the cuss words from your tongue Till you catch yourself a wishing You had died when you were young. —J. WATT HOGUE.
